$743,700 raised for O.C. nonprofits to help homeless

The recent Help Them Home Giving Day event raised $743,700 for 16 local nonprofits to use to help the homeless.

The fundraising event was part of a series of collaborative "giving days" organized by the Newport Beach-based Orange County Community Foundation. The group will be organizing more events throughout the year.

"The success of the Help Them Home campaign is a testament to our community's generosity and the vision of our local nonprofit leaders, who came together based on a shared mission to serve homeless individuals and families," foundation President Shelley Hoss said in a statement. "We are proud to support our exemplary local nonprofits to tackle the most important issues facing our county."

"Empowering Possibilities: A Giving Day for OC Neighbors with Disabilities" will be held May 31.
