O.C. Community Foundation helps nine local groups

On Sept. 18, nine local nonprofits partnered with the Newport Beach-based Orange County Community Foundation to host the second annual Igniting Potential fundraising event that netted more than $127,000 from 518 donors, according to a news release.

“Thanks to the tremendous work of local nonprofits, generous donors and our compassionate community, Orange County’s young people are gaining the resources needed to set them up for future success,” foundation President Shelley Hoss said in a statement. “We are proud to convene and support exemplary nonprofits in tackling the most important issues facing our county.”
